NEARING THE END OF TERM AND MAXIMISING YOUR CHILD'S REPORT...

The end of term and the halfway point of the year is almost upon us. It is frightening to think how quickly the first half of the year has whizzed past, as it feels like only yesterday, we were just returning to school after the summer holidays! It has been such a busy yet incredibly productive time in all classrooms! In these first two terms, we have seen so much development and improvement in the learning of all students at our school.

In Week 10, half-yearly reports will be coming home that will provide information to you about the learning and progress of your child/ren. Over the past few weeks, teachers have been working very hard to compile this information and write these progress reports. The reports provide a great opportunity for you to sit with your child/ren and commence conversations about their work so far and potentially setting some targets or goals for the second half of the year with them.

Below are some ideas and tips that may help to guide these conversations and continue building a growth mindset in your children that will stretch them to be the best they can be. This will also complement a lot of the common language and terminology that is being used at school.

When providing praise or recognition, look for some of the following: effort, progress, hard work, persistence, learning from mistakes, or rising to a challenge that may have seen them initially struggle. Try to avoid just giving praise for being smart, talented, fixed abilities, or not making mistakes. Mistakes are a very important part of the learning process and something you can talk positively about with your child. 'Mistakes help you improve', 'you can learn from your mistakes', or 'let's see what other strategies you can try' are some ways you can approach this. The power of 'yet' is also another really great way to give students belief and confidence that with persistence and continued effort they will continue to improve and work towards their goals. 'You just can't do it yet' or 'you just don't know it yet' are effective ways to continue to build belief and a positive mentality towards their learning, even when things are challenging. Challenges in learning are a positive thing and should be seen and talked about this way...they help us to think deeply and work hard to find solutions to overcome them.

It is very important to open as many avenues as possible with your child to speak about their learning. This should happen daily and can go a lot deeper than 'what did you do today?' or 'how was your day at school?'. Instead, try questions like; 'what did you do today that made you think really hard?', 'what new strategies did you try?', 'what mistakes did you make that taught you something?', or 'what did you do or try today that you didn't think you could yesterday?'

I would like to wish all families a great final couple of weeks of term. Finally, good luck and enjoy the many valuable conversations with your child/ren that lie ahead.

Assistant Principal

Year 6/7 DreamBIG Excursion

On Friday 21st of May, students in the year 6/7 classes attended the DreamBig Children's Festival and saw a performance titled 'Creation Creation'. The 50 minute performance conducted by Windmill Theatre presented theories around the mysteries of the universe including the Big Bang and the afterlife, through a comedy lens. They also participated in a silent disco with DJ Monski Mouse.

P1, P8 and P9 were treated to a DreamBig performance of Wolfgang's Magical Musical Circus at the Dunstan Playhouse. Here are some comments from our P9 audience members.

WHAT RECONCILIATION MEANS TO F15

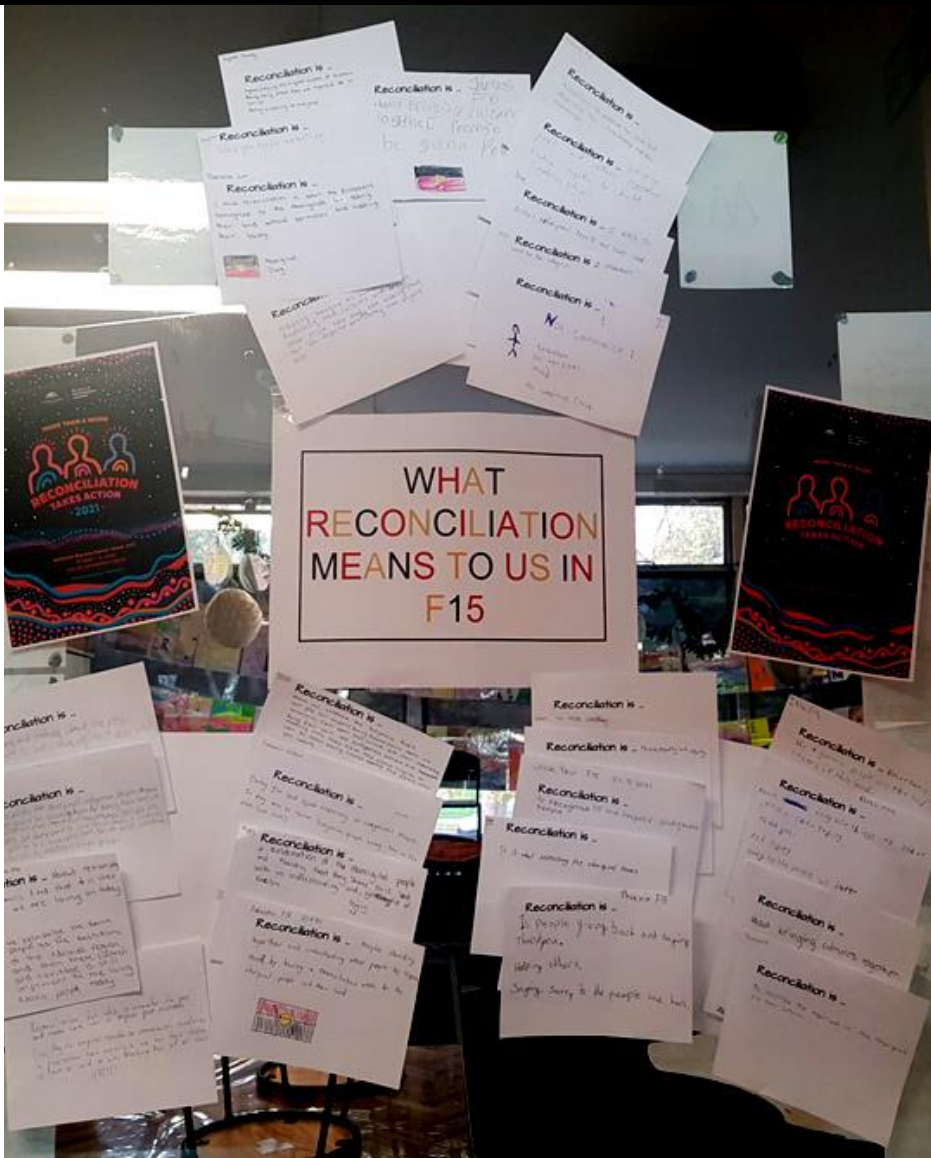

G'day! Ni Hao! Ninna Marni! Just a few of the wonderful ways we can greet people. These examples mean hello in the English, Chinese and Kaurna language.

Over the last few weeks, F15 have been diving into some deep learning around Reconciliation. We explored the Reconciliation Week poster by artist Jessica Johnson, music by Baker Boy and Thelma Plum and the storybook Our Home, Our Heartbeat by Adam Briggs, Kate Moon and Rachael Sarra.

I am very proud of the work, conversations and thinking that has been going on. Below are a few responses from students. They wrote a piece about an inspiring Indigenous person and drew pictures of what Reconciliation means to them.

Look out around the school for their final assessment piece in a few weeks, individual chalk artworks that convey a message they want to share about Reconciliation.
